We, an International Manufacturer, have been one of the world's largest suppliers of academic, consumer and business products for more than a century. Our company boast a proud history of industry leadership, innovation and focus on delivering exceptional value for shareholders, customers and consumers by providing unique, leading-edge products. We are one of the world's largest designers, marketers and manufacturers of branded academic, consumer and business products. Our products are sold in more than 100 countries around the world.

We came into contact with Antal International in 2016 through a recommendation whilst searching for a recruitment partner with true international coverage to support our business in several of our global locations. We engaged Antal International for the recruitment of several positions in Sales, Marketing, Human Resources, Finance and Operations. From the first contact there was a local professional available to meet us to discuss our requirement in full detail. We found that Antal was able to support us by quickly understanding the requirements of our business and translating those requirements to the local market for the search of best relevant talent. Antal was successful in presenting a qualified range of candidates in a fairly short time frame.

Due to the international background of Antal and their consultants' hands-on approach, we found that Antal quickly understood our organizational culture, which gave them an advantage not only in identifying candidates with the required skillset but also with the right cultural fit and language ability.

Throughout our searches we were kept fully engaged and maintained full communication, and therefore confidence throughout the process. I recognize Antal as a Global network of true specialists in recruitment and would wholeheartedly recommend them for any International or Global firm looking for a single point of contact for multiple geographic searches.
